

Gluten Free products available on the NHS

This form lists the gluten free products that are available on prescription, and the number of units people are entitled to based on their age, sex, and other factors. Please complete the form to indicate the products which you would like to receive on prescription, and return to your GP practice.

Some of the products contain Codex wheat starch, a specially produced ingredient which is gluten-free and therefore safe for people with coeliac disease. These are highlighted with a black triangle ▲.

Table 1 below gives details of personal unit allocations per month which can be used to relate to the different types of gluten free staples available. This gives patients flexibility on the different types of gluten free products available on prescription.

Table 1: Recommended amounts per month:
